Telepetree's PeopleConnect automated phone messages sent to email

August 16, 2006

Atlanta, Ga

The Telepetree™ Company released new functionality in the PeopleConnect automated phone call service that allows the sender of an automated phone call to also provide email notification to the recipients that the message was sent. This notification gives additional message broadcasting coverage for the sender and provides the recipient access to the message via email and the web.

Senders of broadcast messages can now fully customize the subject line and message content for each phone tree that is set up using their on-line account at www.telepetree.com. Message recipients are provided a link that, upon successful authorization, give access to the voice recording that was sent out to them.

With this new feature, recipients of a Telepetree phone tree broadcast are now able to replay the message that was sent to them in the actual voice of the sender.
